Russell Douglas Matthews, a former employee of the FBI, testified about his knowledge of Jack Ruby. Matthews stated that he had known Ruby for approximately twelve years. He believed they met through Ruby's operation of the Vegas Club. Matthews described Ruby as a "passing acquaintance".

Matthews added that throughout the years he had known Ruby, they had never discussed topics such as politics, business, etc. Matthews stated that Ruby was never involved in any type of gambling activity in the Dallas area. He also denied any association with Ruby or Lee Harvey Oswald.

Matthews mentioned that during his time in Cuba, he had never seen Ruby or Oswald, and had no knowledge of any connection between them or any police officers.

Elizabeth Matthews, who was divorced from R.D. Matthews, testified that she was living in Shreveport, Louisiana, in mid-1959. She claimed to have no knowledge of Ruby and had never been to any of his clubs. She also stated that she had never received a long-distance telephone call from Dallas on or about October 3, 1963.

Mrs. Matthews claimed to have no connection to Ruby or Oswald. She also denied any association with Ruby or Oswald's police officers.
